-The Prescott (A. T.) Miner has the following: "Is this reservoir water healthy?" asked a newcomer of an old Hassayamper. "Do you see that mule, stranger?" "Yes, sir." "Well, ten months ago that mule was a jack rabbit, and drinking this water made him what he is to-day."

—The use of nickel-plated cooking vessels has been forbidden by Government order in Lower Austria. It is stated, as the reason for this action, that vinegar and other acid substances dissolve nickel; and that this, in portions of one-seventh of a grain, causes yomiting, and is even more poisonous than copper.

-In a recent lecture before a London institution Dr. B. W. Richardson stated that the work of the heart in healthy man is equivalent to the feat of raising live and one-lifth tons one foot per hour, or one hundred and twenty-five tons in twenty-four hours. The use of eight ounces of alcohol causes the heart's work to show an excess of twenty-four foot-tons.

-For biliousness the editor of the Boston Medical and Surgical Journal says a plain diet of bread, milk, oatmeal, vegetables and fruit, with lean meat and fresh fish, is best. Exercise in the open air. The victim of an acute attack will be righted by (1) abstinence, (2) porridge and milk, (3) toast, a little ment and fish and ripe fruit, thus coming to solid food gradually.

-The Gazette of Heppner, Ore., was not behind its esteemed contemporaries in getting a special Christmas number, and has this allusion to it: "The Christmas edition of the Gazette is this year printed in two colors, black and white, and the occasional lampblack spots are skillfully secured by the devil getting on too much ink and failing to ufficiently agitate his roller." -A substance resembling celluloid may be made from potatoes by peeling them, and, after soaking in water, impregnating with eight parts of sulpharic acid, then drying and pressing between sheets of blotting paper. In France pipes are made of this substance scarcely distinguishable from meerschaum. By subjecting the mass to great pres sure a substance can be made of it rival ng ivory in hardness .- Boston Budget

-Erastus Wiman, who is a base-ball manager as well as a man of extensive business interests, says that at least $2,500,000 is spent yearly in base-ball in this country. This is further evidence of the fact that Americans never do any thing by halves. But is not this thing overdone? It would seem so when salaries for good players range as high as $5,000. A Jockey's Curious Reward. Racing successes are curiously rewarded in India. The Nawab of Bhawulpore recently won several races with a favorite Arab steed at Umballa and Meerut, and was so elated that he would not let the victorious horse fultill his other engagements, but had him brought home in triumph. Durbar was then arranged in honor of the horse and joekey-a young Englishman; but the latter only appeared after the cere-mony, having been engaged at another race meeting. The delighted Nawab then bestowed on his jockey, besides his fee, a quantity of native dresses and two wives—the latter present being a sore perplexity to the jockey, who finally managed to decline the honor. -N. During this block, and at 6 42 a. in., a train was held at the Fourteenth street station on the south-bound track, and there was another train on the same track immediately behind it. These trains were well filled with passengers, principally laboring men on their way to work. The laboring men insisted upon leaving the cars, and those on the last train, which was above the station platform, got out of the cars of that train and started to walk

BIOGRAPHICAL.

Mr. Beecher was born at Litchheid, Conn., June 24, 1813. He graduated at Amberst College in 1834, and studied theology at Lane Semmary. In 1837 he became pastor of a Presbyterian Church at Lawrenceburg, and in 1899 at Indianapolts, 1814. In 1847 he received a call from the Plymouth Church, a new Congregationalist organization in Brooklyn, N. Y. Here almost from the outset he began to acquire that reputation as a pulpit orator which has been maintained and increased during nearly half a century. The church and congregation under his charge are probably the largest in Amorica.
He always discarded the mere conventionalities of the clerical profession. In his view his charge are probably the largost in America. He always discarded the mere conventionalities of the clerical profession. In his view humor had a place in a sermon as well as argument and exhortation. He was fond of illustration, drawing his material from every sphere of human lite and thought; and his manner was highly dramatic. Though his keen sense of humor continually manifested itself, the prevailing impression given by his discourses was one of intense carnestness. The cardinal idea of his creed was that Christianity is not a series of philosophical or metaphysical dogmas, but a rule of life in every phase. Hence he never hesitated to discuss from the pulpit the great social and political questions of the day, such as slavery, intemperance, licentiousness, the last for power, and the greed for gain. He was an enthusiast in music, a connoisseur in art, a lover of flowers and animals. Apart from his purely professional labors, he was a popular lecturer in lyceums and orator at public meetings. prayer, or eyes would let the unshed tears The great man slept on, his spent life At half-past nine o'clock precisely a keen ray of light, unusual in its intensity, fell neross the countenance and reflected the dazzling prism of the pendant crystal on the mantel lamps upon the white pillow. At Stapp's Chapel M. E. church last Sunday evening closed one of the most remarkable revivals of religion that has ever occurred in the history of this church. The house was packed to its ntmost capacity, not an inch of standing room was to be had, and hundreds were turned away.

About eight hundred persons have professed to have been helped into either an entirely new life, at these meetings, or have come into a fuller, deeper or clearer experience. It is said that the evangelists labored in great harmony with the resident pastor, Rev. George Stevens, and that no unbiased person could fail to see that the work was genuine.

All the evangelical churches in the city have shared largely in this harvest, goodly number joining the Baptist and other churches. The entire city indeed was shaken to its very centre, and very were not only awakened but convicted and converted at their homes or at their own churches. The revival spirit being in the air made the work easy.

It is not to be expected however that all of these converts will become steady church goers, and it is quite likely that many by careless, wicked tives have so weakened the will that even the visions of the true which have given them such joy in their conversion will fade forever away, and they will return to old habits, becoming more hardened than before so that nothing but a mirucle can ever resone them again from the lowest depths. Others again in profoundest appreciation of the vitalizing power of the new life David C. Imboden, at Kansas City, has become the father of a son and heir, born on the 7th.

will go on to perfection. There was nothing at all in these meetings of a sensational character. No artificial means were used. No exaggerated accounts were published for effect in the daily papers. No effort was made to secure a crowd or to thrust the evangelist's or the pastor's name before the publie. All the advertising done was by the attendants at the church, and yet the house was packed night after night, and the most unflagging interest was daily manifested. These men, Wilson and Kennedy, made hundreds of friends while in the city; but of course many were real desire to be profited spiritually could attend these meetings from day to day without receiving an inspiration to seek the divine life or be prompted to rise to loftier experiences on the highway of holiness. The public voice asserts that there never has been such singing as that conducted by Mr. Kennedy. At early dawn the boys were heard whistling the melodies learned at the meetings, and the girls to hum them on their way to school. Even the aged and infirm, who thought they never could learn a new tune, grew lively on the choruses. Many who at tended the afternoon services brought their suppers to the Chapel and remained to the night meeting, reminding one of the pilgrim devotees on their sacred visits to St. Peter's church.

The material reed in them was hippopotamusivory. The lower plate was made of one solid piece, teeth and plate being carved together. The upper plate required greater skill and was made with the plate separate, and the teeth riveted to it with time gold rivets. Although plaster casts of Wash ington's mouth were made, it was impossible to carve the plates precisely as they should be to fit. They gave him great pain at times, but by gradual carving they finally were mapted to the irregular surface of his mandibles. It was his habit to remove his teeth on retiring at night, and in the course of two years by the moisture of his mouth and the regular nightly cleaning, the upper plate cracked and split so that one day the inther of his country fift the roof of his mouth cleft in twain. Had it not been for the delicate springs inserted at the hinges of these teeth to make them ing tightly to his jaws in the ab sence of that perfect suction which the mod orn dentists scarre the feeth would have fallen out. LAWYERS OF ST. LOUIS How Do They All Make a Living?—Watt-

There are about 800 lawyers in the city of St Louis It would appear, though, looking over the records of the courts, looking over the records of the courts, that the legal business for 400,000 people is done by about 100 men. The lawyers who have the important cases in court can easily be counted, and any one walking along the streets down town, seeing whole big buildings apparently filled with lawyers, hearing lawyers' signs creaking everywhere, is struck with the question. "How do all these lawyers make a living?" There are in the neighborhood of 800 lawyers in St. Louis who have apparently

There are in the neighborhood of 800 lawyers in St Louis who have apparently no visible means of support. There are lawyers who draw large salaries from corporations who are comparatively un known, there are office lawyers whom no one hears of outside the profession, though in it they have reputations greater than the follows who flours in the newanapars the fellows who figure in the newspapars These men are the ones who delve among the authorities and pick out the fine points or law, and who trace back old laws and ordinances to the beginning, that flaws may be found When they are found. may be found When they are found, some lawyer with a reputation is given them, they are sprung on the court like a bombshell, and carried to the higher courts and dilated upon Meanwhile the old burrower is digging and probing away for other points and the leading member of burrower is digging and probing away for other points, and the leading member of the ber is leading a gay life and resping all the honors, his exertion being no more than reciting a lesson he has learned. No-body ever hears of the old John Burleys, the production of whose brains are stolen by the Randal Leshes of the bar, while they are content to receive units of the hundreds of dollars the others obtain in hundreds of dollars the others obtain in fees

There is then another class of lawyers who seem to hang out their signs and have their cards printed for no other purpose than to get beyond the provisions of the vagrancy act These are the dude lawyers—young fellows who always have lounges in their offices that they may turn in and sleep upon if out too late to go home to the fond parents who pay their office rent and keep them in good clothes. They never have a case in court, and wouldn't know what to do with it if they got one. They spend their summers in going to base ball games and steamboat excursions, and their winters in bilbard rooms or roller rinks. Again there are the poor and their winters in billiard rooms or roller rinks Again there are the poor young lawyers, who wear out their pants waiting for clients who never come, and their heads in hoping against hope, and their minds in dreaming of what they would do in the event of getting a case—
